LONDON PROGRAMME:

ANTI-MONEY LAUNDERING (AML) AND FINANCIAL CRIME COMPLIANCE

Money laundering and financial crime present serious legal, regulatory, and reputational risks for organisations operating in today's global economy. Regulators worldwide now expect not only technical compliance, but also robust governance, effective risk assessment, and proactive detection systems.

This intensive five-day programme provides participants with a clear and practical understanding of international AML standards, regulatory expectations, and best practices in financial crime prevention. It examines how money laundering schemes operate, how risks are assessed, how controls are designed, and how investigations are conducted when suspicious activity is detected.

The programme combines legal frameworks with operational realities, enabling participants to understand both the regulatory obligations and the practical challenges of implementation. Through case studies, compliance scenarios, and red-flag analysis, participants will develop the skills required to identify risks, respond to regulatory requirements, and strengthen organisational compliance frameworks. This programme is designed for lawyers, compliance professionals, regulators, in-house counsel, risk officers, and senior managers who require a structured and internationally relevant understanding of AML and financial crime compliance.
